Supporting Children with Challenging Behaviors

Presented by Jason Wilcox, LCSW

Do you want to improve your relationship with your child, enhance your connection, reduce or extinguish power struggles and arguments, help build strong relationships of trust and compassion, and help guide your child to identify solutions for problems in their own lives while taking ownership of their choices?

If your answer is "yes!", come join us as we go over elements of Motivational Parent, which uses MI-Lead techniques and strategies, that will give you ideas and tools on how to engage your children in difficult situations, and navigate challenging behaviors to have a more successful outcome.

Motivational Parent has a number of key concepts that, when adapted in an effective way, can have significant and profound impacts in raising children.

There will be opportunities to discuss specific issues you face.
